Introduction

The original book was the culmination of many years of research by my mom, Ava Boline and myself. The Swedish ancestry of the Boline-Bolene-Walstrom families is a strong and viable heritage. The courage, steadfastness, and faith of our forefathers has set an example of which we can be proud. Imagine for a moment: a young, well-to-do farmer and his family, who have lost everything they own, leaving their homes for a new life in a new country; never to return to family or friends. A young wife separated from her husband for a year, setting out with three young daughters across the ocean for an unknown land and home. From such beginnings our family has grown and prospered.

The research covers the descendants and predecessors of Fredric Boline, John Bolene, Swan Walstrom, and Alfred Walstrom. These four men came to America from Sweden in search of a new life and a new beginning. John and Alfred arrived in 1868, Fredric in 1871, and Swan in 1877.

The book is divided into five sections. The first four sections trace the lineage of Fredric, John, Swan, and Alfred. As a starting point for each section, I used each of the four men as the starting point. Each generation then was numbered.

(Example for me: F.3.5.3 LeRoy Keith) This number system reads: Fredric, 3rd child, fifth child, and 3rd child. Fredric, Amel, Raymond, LeRoy.

See if you can identify your relative: F.3.6.1.1.2

The last section traces the lineages into Sweden as accurately as possible. Much of the information in the last section was obtained from the Genealogical Center at Salt Lake City, Nev. Our direct lineage in this section is indicated by a number in ().

The first publication of this book was done in 1984. Forty years later I thought about how this family has grown and in many cases lost track of relatives. I do not know many of the following generations children, grandchildren or great grandchildren. There were 12 of us in my Boline generation, only 4 are alive today. We grew up knowing each other. The succeeding generations have become more mobile, living from coast to coast.

This book is intended to be made available to all of the family on the internet and hopefully can be updated periodically. If you should find errors with names or dates, want to update new arrivals, or add more information about your life please let me know. There have been many changes in the past forty years, what changes will happen in the next forty and what will they want to know about their ANCESTORS?

I hope you enjoy learning about the rest of the family and how it has grown.

John and Fredric Jansson (Bolene and Boline) were brothers that came to America from New Kroppa, Karlstad (county), Varmland (state), Sweden. John came in 1868 and Fredric arrived in 1871.

Waterloo Township, Lyon County, Kansas

Fredrick Boline, son of Jan Olsson and Maria Oldsdotter, was born 8 July 1846 in Kroppe Karlstad Co., Sweden. Died 8 March 1928 at Admire, Kansas. Married Maria Nilsson (Mary Nelson) 4 April 1874 in Osage City, Kansas.

Fredrick Boline came to America from Sweden arriving 4 Oct. 1871. His brother, John, had come to America in 1868 and was living in Osage City, Kansas. Fredrick joined him.

Little is known of the events leading up to the Boline family coming to America. John and Fredrick were sons of Jan Olsson and Maria Oldsdotter. They had an older brother Olf, b 10 Nov. 1841, and a sister Maja Stina born 7 May 1845 d. July 1845.

Swedish genealogy shows that sons use their father's Christian name as their surname. Jan Olsson's sons were Jansson. A daughter would be Jansdotter (dotter=daughter).

The name Boline carries a family story. The brothers' mail was being mixed up with other Janssons and Johnssons, so they changed their name using the name of a Swedish town (and lake) of Bolin. With the mail problem, they went as far as to add an "e". One spelled his name Boline and the other Bolene. Our lineage being of Fredrick Boline. Several different spellings of Fredrick were discovered: Swedish records used Fredrik, the obituary gave Fredrick, another appearance was Fredric.

Fredrick worked in the coal mines at Osage City. On 18 Dec. 1883 he bought a 160 acre farm for $700 in Waterloo township, Lyon Co., Kansas. (SW1/4 of Sec. 27 of T 15 S of Range 12 east of the 6th P.M.) The farm was approximately seven miles NE of Admire, Ks, where he lived for nearly 41 years. (It is located at the NE corner of Road S and 380). He lived 15 years in Osage City and several years in Kansas City. He was a member of the Waushara church in northern Lyon Co., and had also been a member of the Osage City church and rural Stotler Mission church in western Osage Co. He was one of the early settlers in Kansas.

Obituary from the Osage Free Press dated March 14, 1928.

Frederick Boline was born in Karstad Varmland, Sweden July 8, 1846. He died at the home of his son, A. F. Boline, Admire, Kansas March 8, 1928 at the age of 81 years and 8 months. He was married to Marie Nelson in Osage City, Kansas, April 4, 1874. To this union were born seven children, Oscar Albert, Kansas City, Mo., Amil Fredrick, Admire, Kansas, Carl John, Admire, Kansas, David Edwin, Kansas City, Mo., Mary Augusta Rebman, Admire, Kansas, and Victor Gustav, Omaha, Nebraska. One daughter, Matilda passed away at the age of six years.

His wife preceded him to her eternal home; she passed away November 17, 1923

Mr. Boline arrived in America Oct. 1, 1871 and spent a number of years in Osage City and about 41 years near Admire, Kansas. He was a member of the Waushara Methodist church but in the early days has been a member of both the Osage City and Stotler Mission churches. He was one of the early settlers in Kansas.

He leaves to morn his departure five sons and one daughter, fifteen grandchildren and a host of relatives and friends.

After a short service at the Boline home the service will be at the Waushara Methodist church. He was buried in the Swedish cemetery at Osage City. A male quartet sang several songs. Rev.?????? of the Stotler Mission church was in charge.

The peace of God rest on memory of this departed one.

He married Mary Nelson (Maria Nilsson) b. 6 Feb 1844 in Bokheelt Lillegd, Annerstad, Sweden, the daughter of Nils Samuelson and Brita Mansdotter. She came to America as a child with her family in 1870. They located in Galesburg, Ill. And later moved to Osage City, Ks.

Mary was crippled in a runaway in Eskridge, Kansas. She was watering her team of horses at a watering trough when they became frightened by a passing car. She had both arms broken, one leg broken, her back injured, and a deep gash above one eye. She had recently undergone two surgical operations and had gone to Eskridge for the purpose of another operation. The doctor did not expect her to live, so he did not set the leg. (from a newspaper clipping)

Mary was the sixth child of a family of ten children: 1. Samuel 1835, 2. Maria Catharina 1837-1837, 3. Magnus 1838-1840, 4. Johannes 1839, 5. Peter Johan 1841 (contractor in Omaha Neb.), 6. Maria 1844, 7. Jona 1846, 8. Catharina 1849, 9. Guslofa 1852, 10. Ferdinand 1854.

Boline-Walstrom Wedding

Cupid was entirely satisfied with his work which was consummated Tues evening in the marriage of Mr. Amel Boline and Miss Hannah Walstrom, which took place at the home of the groom, six miles northeast of Admire.

At eight o'clock the contracting parties took their places when Rev. Gustaf Norquist of Topeka, in the presence of about one hundred relatives and friends, in a beautiful and impressive ceremony made them husband and wife. After the ceremony and congratulations, the guests were served a bountiful supper which was in charge of a special caterer from Osage City.

Mr. Boline is the son of F. Boline, one of the prominent and respected farmers of Waterloo township, and is a young man of sterling worth, straightforward and manly in all walks of life—and is entirely worthy of the prize he has won for a life companion.

Miss Walstrom, is the daughter of S. Walstrom, and is an accomplished and refined lady, well-fitted for the new duties she assumes, the Queen of her own home.

The young couple was presented with a large number of handsome and useful presents, which for lack of space we are unable to make special mention.

Mr. & Mrs. Boline went to housekeeping at once in the comfortable home which the groom had already provided and had waiting for the bride.

The News joins their many friends in wishing them a long, happy and prosperous married life.

Among the guests from a distance were: Mrs. C. Tysell and daughter and Miss Emma Hiedman of Kansas City; Mrs. B. A. Rosenquist and Daughter, O.N. Peterson and William Marshall of Osage City; Mr. C.E. Metz and Lottie Gibby of Eskridge.

From "Admire News" Friday July 1901 W.H. Hottle—Editor

The Boline's were always hospitable and their home was a favorite meeting place for family, relatives, and friends.

They attended the rural church of Waushara. Sunday family gatherings were a custom. The young men found pleasure by playing baseball. Each community had a ball team and they played each other during the summer. Other family sports were basketball, ice skating, boxing, horseback riding (and calves), and swimming.

Their children and grandchildren visited the grandparents through the years. It is interesting to hear stories from the various family members as they recall their escapades at the grandparents' farm. City cousins spent weeks at a time in the country with Uncle Amel and Aunt Hannah.

The Christmas custom of the family gatherings with a big tree and abundance of food—lute fisk, potato sausage, rye bread, ostkaka (a pudding made of milk and rennet tablets baked slowly for 1 ½ hours and served with sweetened linden berries) became a family tradition that is used by the younger generations.

As a farmer, Amel carried on a diversified farming operation. He raised quality cattle, horses, and sheep. Chickens were raised for home consumption. Horses were raised and used on the farm.

The Boline families were held in high respect for honesty, family responsibility and loyalty, Christian beliefs, and neighborliness. They truly lived by the Golden Rule—in doing to others what they wanted done to themselves.

Let me live in a house
By the side of the road
Where the races of men go by
The men who are good and men who are bad
As good and as bad as I.
I would not sit in the scorners seat
Or hurl the cynics ban.
Let me live by the side of the road
And be a Friend of Man.

Sennet, raised the son Oscar (Bud) Landstrom. Almeda married a minister. Elnora was divorced from her husband after their third son was killed by a car in a driveway. She raised her two sons, John and Paul, alone.

J.4 Regina died at the age of 12 and is buried in Union Cemetery at Osage City, KS.

J.5 Victor Emmanuel m. 14 Nov 1914 to Matilda Alna Brown.

Victor also worked in the coal mines, but left the mines and went to college. He worked in a Topeka bank for a while. He went to Oklahoma where he worked as a weight man at a mine. Later he got into the oil business. He married Matilda Alna Brown who was raised in Muskogee, OK. Victor was successful in the oil business and owned several refineries, one of which bore his name, Bolene Refining Co., Enid, OK.

Victor was one who had money and the rest of the family always looked up to him and his good graces and money was sought by most of his brothers and sisters. He was generous to the care of his mother, but after her death he spent little time in Osage City.

Hannah Boline told of Victor and his family visiting them on the farm. They enjoyed fishing and the activities of the country. Each child had a suitcase and was responsible for its contents.

Swan Walstrom came to America in 1877 with his brother-in-law Johan Ericksson. Johan died enroute, in Minnesota. Swan continued his journey alone to Osage City, KS where his older brother Alfred P. Walstrom lived (Stotler area). He left Sweden Dec 1887 and arrived Mar 1888. He found work in the Osage coal mines and saved money so he could send for his family, who were still in Sweden. His wife and three daughters joined him in Feb 1889.

While in Sweden, Swan (Sven) was considered to be a wealthy farmer in Dalsland, Sweden. In 1883, Swan and his brother-in-law, Johan, sold their Dalsland farms and together bought an Estate called Simmonstorp which bordered the beautiful lake Venner. (Hannah Walstrom Boline told of skating on a lake.)

Bengt Ericksson (the father of Anna Britta and Johan) bought a place called Torpane close to Simmonstorp. About 1887, Swan and Johan were compelled to sell their farm as a drought had existed for three years. (Anna Britta told that there had been a mortgage on the farm prior to the purchase and the men were unaware of it.) Bengt Ericksson was able to endure the drought, but Swan and Johan sold and emigrated to America.

There were two classes of Swedish farmers in the Old Days, Independent farmers and Peasants. Nearly all of our ancestors owned their own farms. Up to about 100 years ago, only property owners had the right to vote.

Prior to the last 50-60 years most Surnames changed with each generation—eg.—a son used his father's Christian name and added son as a suffix. (Eric Bengtsson was the son of Bengt Jonsson. Eric used his father's name Bengt's son as his surname Bengtsson. The daughters used their fathers name with the addition of dotter (daughter) thus Bengtsdotter developed.)

With Anna Britta (Ericsson) Bengtsson, a transition of name changes appears to be taking place. Bengtsson was found in the research, while her brothers were taking the Ericsson or Ericksson as their surname.

The Walstrom name appears on Swans Naturalization papers, but Sven Nilsson was used on the immigration papers. Anders P. Nilsson was the first of the family to immigrate to America. He changed his name Anders to Andrew and Nilsson to Walstrom. (Told by his grandson Ben Walstrom.)

Anna Britta (Bengtsdotter) Ericsson

"To know her was to love her"

Anna Britta, our Pioneer grandmother that came to America in March of 1888 with three young daughters to join her husband Swan Walstrom; who came seeking his fortune in a new country. There must have been diversity in many ways, which called for an adjustment for both husband and wife. We praise them for their efforts and their Christian love for family and fellowman. Their home was open to all. The Swedish custom of coffee and a sweet tart was always ready to be served to their guests. Anna Britta refused to convert to the English language. She retained her 'native tongue" until her death in 1937. To Anna Britta it was a bitter disappointment to come to a small hut in a pioneer state. After living in Osage City for seven years (her sons were born there) the Walstroms moved to a farm four miles south of Harveyville, KS, where they lived until their deaths.

From the Emporia Gazette (27 Nov 1934)

Memories of her native land, Sweden, are among the dearest possessions of Mrs. Swan Walstrom, who celebrated her 81st birthday anniversary November 15. For the past 38 years Mrs. Walstrom has lived on a farm two miles north of Stotler. The province of Vastergotland, Sweden, was the birth place and childhood home of Mrs. Walstrom. She was the eldest daughter of a well-to-do landowner, Erick Bengtson. Her first home was a large and commodious house. Many servants and hired men worked on the farm. The hired men has their sleeping quarters in a building some distance from the house. Many tenants also lived on the farm. Each farmed a small piece of ground and paid his rent to Mr. Bengtson by doing a certain amount of work for him each year. Buildings for many purposes were part of the large estate.

Swedish Farm was a Factory

From her earliest days Mrs. Walstrom was accustomed to having servants about the house. When one hears Mrs. Walstrom talk of her childhood home, he can readily see that servants and hired men were needed. Erick Bengtson's farm was a little world of its own. It was dependent upon the outside world for few things. Practically everything used on the farm was made on it. "We even had our own threshing outfit," said Mrs. Walstrom. On the farm there was a large orchard in which many kinds of fruit were raised. Mr. Bengtson did his own grafting. Even white plums, which were rare, were raised in this orchard. In those days in Sweden fruit was dried instead of canned. Rye, oats, wheat and peas were the principal crop raised on these level plains of Västergötland. A large amount of woodland also belonged to the Bengtson estate. Mr. Bengtson had large herds of cattle and as a girl Mrs. Walstrom helped herd them. Cheese was made on the farm about every other day.

All of the clothing used by the landowner's family and by the workers was made on the farm. Even the cloth was made there. Sheep were raised on the farm, and wool from them was carded, spun, and then made into cloth. Beautiful linens were thus made. Cotton cloth was also made, but since cotton could not be raised in this northern climate, the cotton yarn was purchased. In those days the Bengtson home was a real factory. Servants and members of the family were busy at the spinning wheels and looms. The hum of spinning wheels was frequently heard on this large estate. Mrs. Walstrom says that the year before her marriage she wove 500 yards of cloth. When suits or dresses were to be made, a tailor or seamstress was called to the home. Leather was tanned on the Bengtson farm also, and when shoes were to be made, a shoemaker came to the farm. Twice a year large washings were done in which all the sheets, pillow cases, towels, regardless of whether or not they had been used, were washed.

Mrs. Walstrom's father was a stern man and chose the playmates for Anna Britta and her brothers and sisters. Children came to the Bengtson home to play with Anna Britta, but she was not allowed to go away to see other children. She attended public school and also went with her parents to a nearby church. It was a Lutheran church—the state church of Sweden. In Sweden all children were born into the Lutheran church.

Recalls Wedding

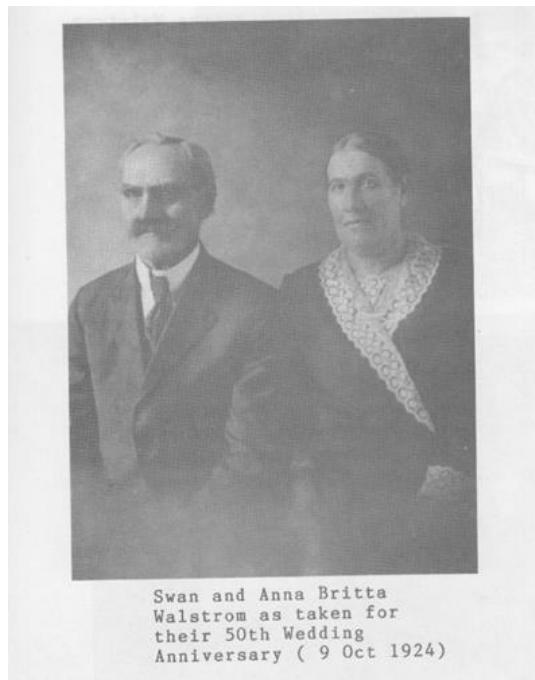

Mrs. Walstrom vividly recalls her wedding 60 years ago. Among the well-to-do landowners in Sweden it was customary to have large weddings. Many guests were invited, and each guest brought a beautiful gift besides something for eats at the wedding feast. "Our wedding," said Mrs. Walstrom "lasted two days and was followed by many parties." Her dowery was completed. "No even pins were missing," said Mrs. Walstrom. There were man sheets, and dozens of pillowcases and towels, all of which were made at the Bengtson home. There were also the needed kettles and dishes. The kettles were of copper. Shining copper kettles were often the pride of a Swedish home. All neatly polished, they stood on shelves in the kitchen proudly displaying the neatness and skill of the mistress of the house.

Upon her marriage Mrs. Walstrom moved across the creek to her husband's farm, which was also large. There, the duties of mistress fell upon her. She recalls with pleasure the first Christmas after her marriage. On this Christmas day her father brought her an organ which he had promised her if she would learn to play it. In those days an organ was valued highly. After living in this house for eight years the Walstroms purchased a large farm in Dalsland, a region of hills and woodland. Thither they moved. Young Walstrom and his wife still retained the name of well-to-do landowners. Their land touched the beautiful Lake Venner. But misfortunes came to this happy family. For three years there were crop failures. Mr. Walstrom decided to seek his fortune in the promised land of America and so in 1888 he came to Osage City, KS and found work in the coal mines. The following year Mrs. Walstrom and three children joined him. To Mrs. Walstrom it was a bitter disappointment to come to a small hut in a pioneer state. After living in Osage City for seven years the Walstroms moved to Lyon county where they have lived since.

In spite of her 81 years Mrs. Walstrom is still active. She still cards wool, spins yaran, and knits stockings. Recently the hum of the spinning wheel was heard at the Walstrom home as Mrs. Walstrom steadily stepped on the treadle. Today no Swedish visitor calls at her home but that she wished to cook the customary Swedish coffee. Mrs. Walstrom speaks only the Swedish language and can understand little English. Four children and 10 grandchildren live near her. She has one brother and one sister in Sweden and one brother in Saratoga Springs, New York. The Walstroms recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary.

In 1934 Swan and Anna Britta celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary. Owing to the fact that the couple was in poor health the celebration was a quiet, informal affair. A family dinner was enjoyed at the noon hour and the couple was at home to their many friends in the afternoon.

DESCENDANTS OF ANDREW P. WALSTROM
STOTLER, KS OSAGE COUNTY

Andrew P. Walstrom, son of Nils Svensson and Greta Andersdotter, the brother of Swan Walstrom, was b. 14 Feb 1842 in Vara, Sweden. (1900 census list his age as 38 years which doesn't correspond to family records.) m. Katherine Pholson.

He came to American in 1868. He brought his family to Stotler with Claus Peterson's family from Galesburg, Ill. The two young men together bought 100 acres of land and together built a two-room house of native lumber. For 3 years the two families resided in this house. More is told of their lives in an enclosed article. "Stotler is not on a map although it is a thriving community" printed in the Emporia Gazette of Dec 25, 1933. Also included in the paper was an item on "Walstrom's Sorghum Mill" (1934)

After the death of his wife (suicide), Andrew moved to Sharon Springs, KS. I presume they homesteaded land there, since they had several acres at one time. The Union Pacific and Santa Fe railroads met at Sharon Springs, KS. This fact explains why several of the young Walstroms worked for the train co.

Memorial Services of Oscar Ledell:

Oscar E. Ledell was born 2 Dec 1900 on a farm in McPherson Co. to John Ledell and Ida Walstrom. He married Verna E. Olson 2 Aug 1949 at Bradford Covenant Church. After his retirement from farming, he worked part-time with wheat harvests, and helped as a school crossing guard at Wichershem North. He was a member of the Kiwanis club and head usher and former Deacon of the Countryside Covenant Church. He died suddenly of a heart attack on Friday, 20 Jun 1980.

He is survived by his wife, Verna, of the home; and his son Steven and his wife, LaVonna of Wichita, Ks. He also has two nieces, Bonnie and husband Carl Holloway of McPherson, and Darlene and husband Joe Gibson of Haysville, Ks.; one nephew Warren Johnson and his wife Willa Jo of McPherson.

Oscar was a farmer at heart, and loved to drive through the countryside to reminisce and visit with farmers and other friends. People were his hobby. He had a special affinity for children of all ages and they loved him as well. He was always willing to help a friend or neighbor in need, especially working in the church. He was always there to greet the people. He had a special kind of humor, with which his friends were well acquainted. Oscar had a strong sense of right and wrong and never hesitated to stand up for his values. He was a loving husband and devoted father and occupied a very special place in all of our hearts. We will miss him deeply, but thank God that our lives were so richly blessed by his presence for so long.

THE TIMES BEFORE COMING TO AMERICA:

In the preceding pages, we have followed the growth of the Boline and Walstrom families in America. There have been good times and hard times, through which that Swedish heritage has remained a part of our lives. The tracing of the Boline-Walstrom families in America was accomplished over a period of time. My mother, Ava Boline, knew most of these ancestors and hoped that you may come to know them also. A very rewarding part of her research occurred at Salt Lake City Genealogical Library where she came across the records tracing the Boline lineage into Sweden. Information on the Walstroms in Sweden was obtained from research of David Ericsson which was given to Carl Boline (F.3.6) before he and his wife traveled to Sweden.

John Bolene was the first of the family to come to America, in 1868. He was followed three years later, 1871, by his brother, Fredrick Boline. It has been a family story (related by Hanna Walstrom Boline) that a third brother, Olaf, was supposed to have followed later. They never heard from him and believe he may have been lost at sea on his journey to America.

THE SETTLING IN AMERICA

We are indeed fortunate that our family records have been preserved as accurately and carefully as possible. Questions that perhaps the descendants of the Boline's and Walstrom's might ask are "Why did our ancestors decide to settle in Osage City—Stotler—Admire area? What was the country like when they first came to the area?" I have found some articles that I believe will provide you with a clue to the answers to these questions.

THE STOTLER COMMUNITY

The following excerpts were taken from articles written by Marie Agnes Olson that were printed in the Emporia Gazette December 25-27, 1933.

"Near the northeastern corner of Lyon County there is a little community known for miles around as Stotler. Yet, if one looks on any present-day maps of Kansas no such name can be found. The community is proud, however, that some years ago the name of Stotler actually did appear in the Kansas maps. In spite of the fact that its name no longer adorns the map, the community of Stotler is just as real as it ever was although the passing years have brought many changes. Stotler is just a rural community, but the character of its inhabitants makes it stand out from other surrounding communities. A group of Swedes who live in Stotler give it its distinctive characteristics.

...to turn back the pages of history to the pioneer days of Stotler, when the first settler found his way to the community the entire region was broad prairie inhabited by the plants and animals which thrive on the Kansas plains. The red men roamed the region and frequently pitched their tepees along Salt creek. Except for a few scattered trees along the creek there was nothing to obstruct the view for many miles around. A well-worn government trail wound its way across the prairie from Burlingame, passed over the region which was to become Stotler and then continued its way toward Emporia. Over this trail rolled numerous westward-bound prairie schooners, and then a government train carrying provisions for the soldiers stationed in the western forts plodded over the prairie trail." (Author's note: There were actually two trails across north Lyon County, the Santa Fe trail headed towards Council Grove and beyond and the Burlingame road headed to Emporia.)

"It was some time in the latter sixties that the first settler followed the trail to Salt creek, and built his prairie home near its eastern bank at the side of the old trail. This first pioneer was France Cabbage. His brother, John Cabbage, later chose a site for him home on the opposite side of the creek... But it was not the Cabbages who were destined to make Stotler. Before many years passed both families had left the community.

In 1869, a young Swede Claus Peterson, set out with his family from Michigan to find a home in Kansas. Upon arriving in Ottawa, he set out on foot one morning to investigate the land in the vicinity of what is now Osage City. In the evening, the weary and hungry Swede chanced to stop at the home of Jim Fagan, who as luck would have it, was a land agent. Upon being shown the land in the region, young Peterson selected a site adjoining the claim of John Cabbage. The site was 10 miles from the point which the following year became the small hamlet named Osage City.

To this land, Peterson brought him family and his youthful friend, A.P. Walstrom, with his family. The two young men together bought 100 acres, and together they built a 2 - room house out of native lumber. There were cracks between the boards and there was no ceiling. The stovepipe half was moved passed out through a hole in the roof. For three years the two families resided in this house, each occupying one room. Finally, Walstrom decided to move onto his 50 acres. The house was then sawed in two and Walstrom's half was moved to his farm.

The first years were years of hardship for the two young Swedes, both were extremely poor, but full of youthful enthusiasm. Burlingame, 12 miles away, was the first trading point for the families. Many times, Peterson and Walstrom walked there, and returned carrying what little provisions the families could afford to buy. One day Peterson purchased a plow, and walked home carrying it on his back. Finally, each of the men purchased a horse and together they had one team. For four years the families of Peterson and Walstrom and Cabbage were the only settlers in the community. These were years of hard work and deprivation. Now and then in their work the parents and children would pause to watch the white-topped wagons roll by. Scarcely a day passed but some wagon hurried by, and frequently they came in groups of 12 or 14. Often they camped by the creek, and went to the Peterson home to ask for hay or other provisions. The prairie schooners were welcome sights to the busy settlers. Less welcome, however, were the Indians wandering back and forth over the prairie.

Early in the Spring of 1873 two Swedish families disembarked from a freight car in Osage City. They with their stock and other belongings had come from Galesburg, Ill., with such rude accommodations. The fathers, namely, Magnus Lungren and Joh Sutherland, selected their land in the neighborhood of Peterson and Walstrom, and immediately built a 1-room shack... The following year, 1874, several more Swedes took their place among the home-makers of the community. These Swedes had come to Osage City in 1870 and 1871. In the latter sixties a Swedish committee had been sent out from Princeton, Ill., to investigate the possibility of buying land in the newly opened region in and around what is now Osage City.

The investigation and report of this committee led to the coming of numerous families. At first men worked on the building of the Santa Fe railroad, which in 1870 reached Osage City. Later, they worked in the stone quarry and strip mines.

...The first years were trying for the Swedish colonists. All of them were poor and could afford only a meager living. Many times, practically the only food available was black bread and coffee, or mush and milk. Before wells were dug, water was taken from the creek. Farming did not progress rapidly. The settler could at first break up only eight or ten acres. For a number of years corn was planted by hand, a hole being made with a hoe and the corn dropped in and covered. This was customarily the children's task. Quite early some of the families commenced using hand planters. A 2-shovel plow drawn by one horse served as the first cultivator. Small fields of wheat and barley were also planted. The corn, cattle, and hogs which were raised could not be sold for cash as they are today. Instead, the settler would trade a hog or bushel of corn for some clothing or groceries in Burlingame or Osage. If he purchased a plow or other implement, he paid for it with cattle or hogs.

In those days there were no fences to separate the various claims so in the morning the cattle were let out and allowed to roam at will. In the evening it was the task of the children to go after the cows. This was a task which in those days was not an easy one. Those who were boys and girls at that time relate how at times the cows wandered six miles or more. Getting the cows at such times was a long walk for barefoot children of eight or ten years. If horses were available, they were used, but in most cases they were not. Each family herd had a different sounding bell, and the only way to find the cows was to listen for the bell and follow its call. It was unfortunate if the cows had happened to lie down for a rest. Tales have been told of times when the children were lost and did not find their way home until 10 or 11 o'clock at night, sometimes without the cattle.

The prairie fire was a constant hazard of pioneer life. One of the first task of the settler was that of making a fire guard, which was done by plowing four or five furrows around the house. The roar of a prairie fire in the distances struck fear into the hearts of the women and children. Immediately they ran to remove leaves and grass which might have accumulated in the furrows of the fire guards, and then with fast-beating hearts wait to see if their little hut would be doomed or saved.

Sickness also played its part in the early history of the Swedish colony. At an early date a typhoid epidemic took the lives of several children. Coffins were made by Swan Lindholm, one of the settlers, who as a carpenter by trade. The community cemetery was located at the summit of the hill back of the school house....

The Swedish pioneers were sincere Christians, and immediately upon establishing their homes began assembling in the various huts to read and study the Bible. Each home had its daily period of Bible reading and prayer. As soon as the school was built, the pioneers commenced having services there. Now and then traveling preachers visited the settlement.

One of the early projects in the community was the building of a school in 1874. The site was a treeless hillside on the windswept prairie. The building was small, having but three windows on each side. The settlers could not afford to buy desks and seats. Consequently, they were made of rough boards. A rudely build teacher's desk and stove also was installed. To this rudely furnished school, eight pupils came during the first year.

Before many years elapsed, a post office was established in the Swedish community and it was named Stotler in honor of Jacob Stotler of Emporia, who was influential in its establishment. The post office of Stotler was first located in the home of A.P. Walstrom...

Such were the beginnings of the flourishing Swedish colony of Stotler. In the years that followed the colonists prospered. By the eighties and nineties, the second generation had come to play a prominent part in the life of the community. In the early eighties the school building became too small so a larger one was built. The number of pupils at one time actually reached the enormous figure of 75.

As the colonists prospered, the rude huts gave way to larger houses. Additional land was broken up and large fields of corn and wheat appeared. Trees grew up around the homes. Roads were laid out, and bridges built. The first improvement in transportation was the spring wagon, the coming of which was a great event in Stotler. In 1904-05 came the telephone to the community and later other conveniences that are an integral part of Stotler today. Thus, from its humble beginnings the Swedish colony at Stotler has grown and become prosperous."

Miscellaneous Stories:

Silo Filling:

Raymond, his brothers, Gordon, Fred, and Vern and a neighbor Ray Peterson would start cutting silage for their winter feed for cattle in August. Silage was either corn or sargo. They all owned the one row silage cutter, pulled by a tractor and the blower and pipe at the up right silo. The one owning the crop would run the cutter since he knew his field and what he wanted to put in the silo. The others would pull wagons or work at the silo. They also filled some trench silos if there was enough feed. The brothers worked together to get the job done.

Noon was always a feast during this time as they would stop for lunch and the wife where they were working would fix a large lunch. Dad always told mom "doesn't matter what it is, just have plenty of it:". No one went away hungry.

Vern and Alta moved to Arizona to try a drier climate for Alta's arthritis. Joan had a horse named Cindy that she had raised and didn't know what to do with her. Raymond made her an offer to keep and use the horse and if she ever wanted to sell it he would buy it. Cindy was a gentle horse that kids could ride without a saddle. One of our neighbor girls would go out to the pasture and catch the horse and get on without saddle or bridle and ride, steering the horse by waving her handkerchief to turn the horse.

Carl Walstrom took care of his invalid sister Ester for many years until she died. Carl was an avid fisherman and knew many ponds and places to fish across Lyon and Osage counties. His advice to investing, invest in utilities and toilet paper, something everyone needs.

My brother, Duane, tells people we didn't know we were poor. All we had to eat was beef, pork, chicken, milk, potatoes, tomatoes, vegetables and fruit. Dad would plant 100 lbs of potatoes and set out 50 or so tomato plants. Mom had her garden and as we always said would can anything that stood still. Our basement was filled with fruits and vegetables that she canned from the garden. We always had milk cows until I went to college. Then the folks got rid of the chickens and milk cows. Tells you something...

I am told that Amel Boline used to break horses. At one time he bought a new saddle. Well, one day when he was gone his boys (Gordon, Fred, Vern, Raymond, and Carl) decided to have a rodeo. So, they got the new saddle and strapped it onto a calf and had a rodeo. The saddle did not survive the "rodeo", so the boys buried it. Amel always wondered who "stole" his saddle. Many years later when he was retired and living in Osage City, some of the boys came clean about the saddle! To be a fly on the wall would have been interesting.

All of Amel Boline's kids attended school at #9 Rural School. The school was located a mile west and half mile south of their home on the west side of the road. Today that would be on Road S5, north of Road 370. The rural school had grades 1-8 in the one room school. That school is where my mother, Ava (Greenlee) Boline started teaching.

I am sure all of you have stories that you would share. Please share them with your kids and grandkids about the "good old days". Things have changed in the past 150 years since Fredric, Mary, John, Nellie, Swan, Anna Britta, Andrew and Katherine came to America. We are all richer for their courage and sacrifices.
